

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to formulated lubricant oils derived from a highly paraffinic basestock. The lubricating oils of the present invention achieve the extremely stringent viscosity requirements of SAE "0W" crossgraded engine oils and demonstrate an 5 excellent combination of low-temperature performance and biodegradability not achievable by other formulations derived from other classes of basestocks.